COURSE OBJECTIVES

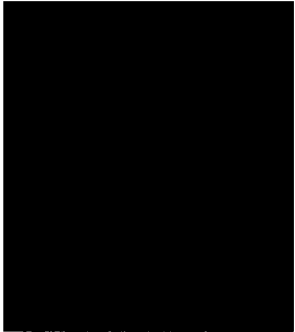

CS Records II (Biographic Research) is intended for those Officers who support operations through recovery of information about persons of interest to the Clandestine Services. It deals with the principles, techniques, and specific procedures used in exploiting the various records of the Agency and other sources of biographic information, primarily at Headquarters.

Biographic Research has often been called "name checking" and regarded as no more than an administrative process. For this reason, people with insufficient knowledge of either the available sources of information or of the appropriate extent of the investigation are sometimes assigned to the task. As the Agency's operations have become more complex and the records derived from them have become more extensive, more highly specialized knowledge has become necessary in order to perform adequate name-checks. This course provides an introduction to the skills needed in biographic research, and represents a synthesis of the experience of professionals in the field.

Students are instructed in CS Requirements for biographic research, its place in the overall investigative process, and in the available resources and repositories of information. Exercises in research and in preparation of the necessary reports form the bulk of the course, together with a practical exercise in the Case Officer's responsibilities to the CS Records System at the conclusion of his work.
